Intended use under the following conditions

Temperature (-24°C - 80°C)

It is the responsibility of the packer/filler to ensure the suitability of the final food packaging for its intended end-use.

When paperboard, is used only in indirect contact it is important to decide whether the paperboard can reasonably be expected, to come into contact with the food i.e. to affect the food in any way. Only for such cases when there is a possibility that the paperboard affects the packed food the EU framework regulation applies. This depends on the properties of the primary packaging and other parameters such as storage time, storage temperature etc.

Storage conditions

In order to ensure product safety and quality, the product must be, wrapped and stored indoor, under normal conditions and good protection, sheltered from rain and snow. We recommend converting of the packaging within 12 months from manufacturing date.
